

A Letter from the Production Team:

First, let us thank you for coming out to auditions for the musical this year. We understand that you have many possible extra-curricular activities that you can take part in and we're glad that you're choosing to make the musical a part of your life. The high school musical is a time honored tradition and a cornerstone of American culture (someone should make a movie about it). Over the course of the next few months you will work harder than you have on almost anything. You will laugh louder, make deep friendships and shed a few tears when it is all over. By joining the musical, you are joining a family. We wanted to write you this letter to discuss what you can expect from your time in the musical this year.

The musical is a huge undertaking. It requires the efforts of hundreds of people putting in thousands of hours. You are an integral part of that process. We rely on everyone's efforts to make the show a success. No one is more or less important than anyone else. Because of this we will require your time. Some parts will require more time than others. If you are going to commit your time it is vital that you commit fully. We will be respectful of your time and will try not to waste it. Because we are going to be efficient with your time it is vital that you arrive at all call times ready to work. Proper preparation is key to success. As we said before, you are part of an ensemble. People rely on you for their success. Therefore, it is imperative that you get your work done in time for rehearsal. That includes having lines memorized as soon as possible, learning choreography and working on songs and characterization. Acting is much more fun if you have the advance work done.

As educators, we understand the importance of time to work on school work and to be well rested. The production team will work to ensure we are using all our cast members time well. Please don't hesitate to bring school work to rehearsal, if you are experiencing down time during rehearsal you can use that time to finish work.

We are so excited that you are going to be a part of this journey. Buckle your seat belts and prepare for an experience that you won't soon forget.
